

The bachelor thesis titled „The sacramental service in the Holy Mount near Příbram“ collects and evaluates the information about where the applicants for three of the sacraments (baptism, confirmation, marriage) have come from in the last twenty-year period as well as the conditions required for celebrating the sacraments. The subject is treated by the method of study of the basic and specific documents and by research.

The theoretical part provides the general information about the Holy Mount, the congregation of the Redemptorists, about the other catholic parishes in Příbram and some general information about the three sacraments. The results of the practical part are demonstrated as responses to the three predetermined questions: What are the main features of the Holy Mount as an important pilgrimage place and as a parish? Where do the applicants for the sacraments come from? What are the conditions required for celebrating sacraments in the Holy Mount? The statistical data are gathered in the charts. The conclusion evaluates the results of the research and gives responses to the questions mentioned above.
